The extra two requirements I chose for my assignment were a longer storytelling document and a variety of buildings. I am still getting used to how moving and manipulating the buildings work, so i have an odd variety of house like structures and features that I was able to make, alongside a little staircase that would normally help the player see out and around the vicinity, if the game worked. The longer lore document was very fun for me to write as I love to do so, and I hope you enjoy the bare bones of what i was able to make of such a vague place.
